There are even tutorials for photographers who want to make sure their camera images are ready for online advertising campaigns. Beyond Photoshop Photoshop is an iconic program, but it's not the only software package available to photographers. Other popular software solutions include PaintShop Pro, Corel PaintShop Pro X2, Paint Shop Pro X3, Paint Shop Pro X4, Apple Inc.'s iPhoto, Adobe's Lightroom, and Apple Inc.'s iMovie. Photo editing programs can be categorized in many ways. The program type described here is the most complex and most technically advanced. Multimedia creation programs can enable you to add video, audio, or slide-based content to an image. These are programs that enable you to enhance images using special effects and filters. Adobe has branched out into the freelance market, creating tools that enable both professionals and amateurs to sell their images and other media. As many photographers and videographers become familiar with this kind of software, it helps to understand the way it works. How Photoshop Works Photoshop is based on a system called the Document Object Model (DOM), so you're accessing an image as a series of layers stacked on top of each other. You can perform a wide variety of effects on the layers of an image, as well as modify the overall look and feel of an image. When you open Photoshop, you'll see a workspace that looks similar to the following image. This window contains many tools that let you manipulate images, but you may well have a few additional options — for example, a tool for manipulating an image as you draw directly over a selection. You can also import photo data into the program and work on it right in the application. Notice that the 3D box on the left side of the window indicates the presence of a selected image. You can drag the bottom border of the 3D window to make it bigger or smaller. There are two arrows on the right side of the window — one pointing up and the other pointing down. Clicking the up arrow moves the box from the side of the window to the top, and clicking the down arrow moves the box from the top to the bottom of the window. When you double-click the box, the image appears in the window. (Double-clicking the image itself displays the image in the window, as shown in the figure below.) You can drag the window's edges to reposition

Oxybutynin is an anticholinergic agent that has been shown to improve corneal sensitivity in patients with dry eye syndrome. A side effect of topical oxybutynin is lacrimation. As this may interfere with the absorption of cyclosporine (Neoral), we evaluated the absorption of this drug in patients receiving oxybutynin. For 12 consecutive days, 12 corneas with slightly thickened corneas (average Central Corneal Thickness, measured with ultrasonic pachymetry, was 570 ± 38 microns) were treated with 0.1% commercial preparation of oxybutynin-G (Bartels, Inc., Atlanta, GA) and systemic cyclosporine (average dose, 121 ± 23 mg/day) in a double-blinded manner. As part of the study, a washout phase of 4 days was done to ensure that the interaction of cyclosporine and oxybutynin was reversible. Corneal thickness and intraocular pressure were measured in each patient before and 24 hours after the initiation of oxybutynin application. Corneal thickness and intraocular pressure, as well as lacrimation, were the same in all three treatment groups during the washout phase. When oxybutynin was started, however, corneal thickness increased in all groups (mean thickness, $585 \pm$

Q: Minimum of a function with special structure? Consider $f \in C([0,1] \times [0,1])$ and $f(x,y) \geq 0$ for every $(x,y) \in [0,1] \times [0,1]$. Define $g: [0,1] \times [0,1] \rightarrow \mathbb{R}$ by: $g(x,y) = \begin{cases} f(x,y) & \text{if } x > y \\ 0 & \text{if } x \leq y \end{cases}$ Is it true that the minimum of f (i.e. $\inf f$) equals $g(x,y)$ for every $(x,y) \in [0,1] \times [0,1]$? I've tried to make a proof by contradiction, and even done a few calculations, but I'm stuck and I have no clue on where to start. A: Such a function does not necessarily attain its minimum at every point. Consider, for example, $f(x,y) = xy$. Then, $g(x,y) = -xy$ for $x > y$. If g attains its minimum at $(a,b) \neq (0,0)$ in that set of points, then f attains its minimum at $(0,0)$, which contradicts the hypothesis. A similar argument works for $f(x,y) = -xy$ if we take points $(0,y)$ with $y > 0$ instead. As the next chapter of the Human Rights Commission of Pakistan (HRCP) begins, the commission is faced with a unique challenge. It faces the reality of a country that has lost many of its human rights activists. The commission, which has always been at the forefront of holding state and non-state actors accountable to their duties under international law, is aware that it needs to remain vigilant, and it cannot afford to lose its people. The fall out Last week, in an address to the HRCP, the High Commissioner for Human Rights, Rupert Colville, said, "What has become crystal clear over the last two years is that this is not a movement that you can take for
