Load or unload a virtual drive from removable drives. Remove virtual drives from Windows. Remove the drive letters or mount the drive without renaming the drive. Unmount the drive with a single click. Supports mount ISO, CUE, NRG, MDS, MDF, and IMG files. Automatically mount or unmount images when inserted into a CD or DVD drive. Mount the virtual drive without creating a new drive letter or creating a file system on the drive. Windows 7 introduced a new universal built-in CD and DVD boot menu that enables you to boot the computer from either a CD or a DVD. If you're not familiar with this menu, it can be opened by pressing the Esc key while the computer is booting. You may see a menu that contains the option "To Windows" or "To OS/DVD/CD". This built-in menu automatically loads Windows 7 and that's why many users have been confused by the newly designed screen. However, if you want to boot from a virtual drive, you may use a third-party program. If you don't have such a tool, you can use a Windows tool to boot Windows 7 from either a CD or a DVD. The bottom line is that you should use the built-in menu if you want to boot from a real CD or a DVD. However, if you want to boot from a virtual CD/DVD drive, you can use a third-party tool. That's why we're presenting a third-party tool to boot Windows 7 from a virtual drive in this guide. Install and Configure Virtual Drive for Windows 7 This small application allows you to boot Windows 7 from a virtual drive. You can configure the virtual drive to load any type of files and any operating system. This tool is available for all types of Windows 7 operating systems. Thus, you can have one virtual drive with multiple virtual operating systems. Additionally, you may use multiple virtual drives at the same time to run multiple operating systems. However, before going ahead with the tool, you should use the built-in menu to load Windows 7. Therefore, in order to make the tool work, you should make sure that Windows 7 is the only operating system selected in the menu when you press Esc. Alternatively, you may use the built-in menu to boot Windows 7 from a disc
