I want to send JSON response with the following content: { "name":"Tom", "phoneNumber":"+1-555-123-456", "dateOfBirth":"1997-06-13" } When I try to send a String with this JSON document, it works as expected. But when I try to write it with ObjectMapper and pass it to the response's body variable (in a spring-boot controller) I receive an exception saying this: Could not write JSON: Unrecognized name: 'data' (using default value for extension): was expecting ('true', 'false' or 'null') at [Source: [B@4ed641fe; line: 1, column: 2] I'm getting the exact same error using spring's WebClient with the JSON as a response. Is it a Jackson problem? Or is it something Spring Boot related? Here is the code of my controller: @GetMapping("/hello") @ResponseBody public JsonObject test() { ObjectMapper om = new ObjectMapper(); JsonObject d = om.readValue("{\"name\":\"Tom\",\"phoneNumber\":\"+1-555-123-456\",\"dateOfBirth\":\"1997-06-13\"}", JsonObject.class); return d; } The only difference is that I'm returning JsonObject instead of JsonElement. A: You can avoid the exception and still return an JsonObject by specifying the MapperFeature.DEFAULT_INDENT_OUTPUT:
