Invention The present invention relates to a planer laser beam irradiation apparatus for irradiating a surface of a workpiece with a laser beam, and also relates to a planer laser beam machining method using the apparatus. More particularly, the invention relates to a planer laser beam irradiation apparatus which is suitable for a laser beam machining method of irradiating a metal material with a laser beam to machine a surface of a metal material, and also relates to a planer laser beam machining method using the apparatus. 2. Description of the Related Art Conventionally, a metal plate is surface-treated to obtain various specific functions by utilizing a surface of the metal plate (a surface of a metal material). For example, a surface of a metal plate is electrolessly plated to form a film on the surface of the metal plate, thereby forming a decorative layer. Further, for example, a film is formed on a metal plate surface, thereby obtaining the functionality of the surface of the metal plate (a surface of a metal material).

Further, a metal plate surface is plated with various different kinds of metals, thereby forming a material having multiple functions. There are various kinds of surface treating methods for the above-mentioned metal plate surface. For example, a known surface treating method is an electroless plating method. In the electroless plating method, a surface of a metal material is irradiated with a laser beam, thereby removing surface oxidation of the metal material to form an electrolyte for electroless plating. Further, the electroless plating method is used as a method for forming a

* Key macro is used to copy selected text from one of open pages and paste them in the New Mail message text. * Key macro allows to use basic formatting in the message body: text color, bullet, etc. * New Mail message body is set up by default. You can modify it if needed and then paste the formatted text into New Mail. * Key macro can be useful for copying and pasting small chunks of text on all pages that you open. Note: By default, macro is set to 'copy and paste' (for example, GOTO TOC!) To install and use this

WASHINGTON, D.C. - Today, Congressman Jim Cooper (D-TN) led a group of 22 House Democratic Co-Chairs in a letter to Acting EPA Administrator Andrew Wheeler calling on him to re-open the public comment period on the EPA's proposed $2 billion Bear Run coal ash landfill. In the letter, the Co-Chairs and other Democratic Members of Congress pointed to both the financial and environmental concerns associated with the proposed landfill, noting that there is “a pressing need for a sound national policy on how coal ash is handled and where it is disposed.” The letter also asked Wheeler to “do more to engage stakeholders and public concerns.” In the letter, the Co-Chairs also specifically asked Wheeler to consider closing the landfill based on a number of factors, including that a pending suit in North Carolina could jeopardize the landfill and “risk significant harm to the environment.” Cooper previously led a group of 22 House Democrats to write a letter to EPA Administrator Scott Pruitt on the subject of coal ash in January. “We were shocked when the EPA announced the closure of Bear Run, and they have yet to take any meaningful steps to address the massive impacts this decision will have on the people of Tennessee and the nation,” said Cooper.

“Instead, they've left this decision to quietly fly under the radar while local coal power plants continue to dump their toxic ash into landfills and ponds, which means the potential for a catastrophic spill has increased exponentially. “It's clear this landfill can't be allowed to remain open,” said Cooper. “Tennessee's communities deserve better from the EPA. The EPA should close the landfill and develop and implement a strong nationwide policy on coal ash. That's the kind of leadership we need to address this problem,” said Cooper. When it comes to hiring, every business owner wants to find the right person for the job. That’s why it’s so important to identify the attributes you’re looking for and how you’ll want them to fit within the company. It’
